

203 Law for accounting

The aim of this module is to help students explore a general understanding of the principle areas of English law that may be encountered in business organisations or professional practice.

Students will learn what constitutes a valid contract and the expectation of and consequences to the parties involved and the contractual relationship between an agent and a principal. Also the tort of negligence and its relevance in giving of professional advice will be considered.

Students will learn the relevant legislation affecting sole traders, partnerships and companies, including the law of insolvency that is relevant when a business runs into financial difficulties.

Students will also have the opportunity to study the legislation on fraud, money laundering and whistleblowing relevant to accountants in business organisations or professional practice. Finally, students will consider various aspects of employment law.

Intended module learning outcomes

On completion of this module, the student should be able to:

1. Analyse the nature of contractual agreements, the agency relationship and the consequence of negligence.
